occupation: Farmer

marital status: Married, 1 child (newborn)

"I make a lot of mistakes, but at least I tried."

Rey has always neglected the commodities of modern life, only using modern inventions when necessary, such as for online delivery of goods. For as long as he could, he was content with living on his ranch, which he inherited from his grandfather and making a living off of the land. However, his wife has had the desire for them to retire by 60 and move into the city, so Rey needs to keep the farm running until his child is old enough to take over, as well as grow a retirement fund.
